

WEST VIRGINIA MATERIALS RECYCLING DIRECTORY

"Keeping West Virginia Clean and Green"

west virginia

department of environmental protection

Revised 2022

Introduction

The West Virginia Department of Environmental Protection is committed to promoting a healthy environment in the Mountain State. Recycling plays an important role in our mission. It reduces the amount of waste sent to landfills; conserves natural resources such as timber and water; prevents pollution by reducing the need to collect raw materials; saves energy; and helps create jobs. According to a national Recycling Economic Information Study in 2016, recycling and reuse activities accounted for 681,000 U.S. jobs in a single year, worth $37.8 billion in wages and $5.5 billion in tax revenues.

This directory helps West Virginians find commercial and community recycling opportunities near where they live. There also is a section on scrap metal handlers. All directory information is as current as possible. Before delivering recyclable materials to any organization, please call to confirm hours of operation, delivery address and types of materials accepted. This guide is a product of the West Virginia Department of Environmental Protection and West Virginia Office of Energy. To report any errors in this directory, please contact the REAP Office at the Department of Environmental Protection at: depreapgrants@wv.gov or call 1-800-322-5530.

Recycling in West Virginia

REAP-West Virginia Department of Environmental Protection

The Rehabilitation Environmental Action Plan (REAP), a unit of the West Virginia Department of Environmental Protection, promotes community-based recycling programs and recycling education initiatives. Among the programs it administers are the Recycling Assistance Grant Program, Litter Control Grant Program, WV Make It Shine Earth Day Celebration and the State Employees Office Paper Recycling Program. As part of REAP's Covered Electronic Devices Manufacturer Registration and Takeback Program, West Virginians can return certain brands of E-waste to their original manufacturer for proper recycling, thus keeping them out of landfills. E-waste includes items such as televisions and computers. The CED Takeback Program also provides funding to municipalities and counties to offer their own E-waste takeback events or to support existing collection programs. For additional information on REAP recycling activities, call 1-800-322-5530 or visit the REAP Web site at: <https://dep.wv.gov> Just type "REAP" in the search bar.

Solid Waste Authorities

Solid Waste Authorities (SWA) in West Virginia are charged with promoting and encouraging source reduction, reuse and recycling activities within their counties. According to the most recent recycling survey, of the 50 county and regional SWAs, 35 provide recycling services and five work closely with local recyclers or municipalities to make sure residents have recycling options. Together these counties have 129 drop-off locations and 36 curbside programs. Over 21,157 tons of material was recycled by these programs in calendar year 2019, bringing in $678,919 in revenue.

WV Code §22-15A-18(b) mandates cities with populations over 10,000 provide curbside recycling to their residents. West Virginia has 14 mandated municipalities. These cities collected 8,199 tons of material in 2019, up 3,363 tons from 2017.

The Solid Waste Management Board (WVSWMB) is the state agency charged with helping local SWAs achieve their recycling goals through technical assistance and grants.

Current contact information for local solid waste authorities is available at:

<https://www.state.wv.us/swmb/contacts.htm>.

Recycling Coalition of WV, Inc.

Since 1999, the Recycling Coalition of WV, Inc. has been advocating recycling and encouraging West Virginians to make purchasing decisions based on recycled content or the ability to recycle the material once the product has completed its useful life. The Recycling Coalition coordinates recycling activities like the Re-Fashion show, provide incentive prizes for adults signing a pledge to support recycling and sponsor youth and teacher contests.

November 15th marks the national observation of America Recycles Day. Each year, the West Virginia Recycling Coalition and its partners sponsor the state's celebration of this annual event. Through educational and promotional activities, statewide school contests and county events, West Virginia Recycles Day has gained pledges from thousands of West Virginians who support recycling.

Visit www.wvrecycles.com for programs, events, and contest information.

How to use this directory

COMMERCIAL RECYCLING CENTERS

These centers are private sector operations that typically pay for materials from the public.

COMMUNITY PROGRAMS

These programs consist of local government, charitable, civic group and other business collection activities that gather materials from the public on a donation-only basis.

This directory also includes information on scrap metal handlers around the state.

2021 WV COVERED ELECTRONIC DEVICE (CED) FREE RECYCLING TAKEBACK PROGRAM

Manufacturers that offer Covered Electronic Devices for sale by any means to West Virginia markets and produce 1000 devices annually are required by WV Code §22-15A-25 to register with the WV Department of Environmental Protection (WVDEP).

Covered Electronic Devices, or CEDs, are devices with motion picture display screens measuring 4 inches or more diagonally. Devices that are part of or contained within motor vehicles, household appliance, or commercial, industrial, or medical equipment are excluded from the West Virginia definition of CEDs.

CED manufacturers pay annual registration fees that are deposited into the CED Recycling Fund. The funding is used for grant awards to local governments to provide public electronic recycling programs and collection events. E-manufacturers are incentivized to establish their own takeback recycling programs for their brands by paying lower annual registration fees.

On page 22 of this directory is a list of CED brands that have approved free takeback programs established by the manufacturer.
